

To discuss the provision of a Notice Board in the South of Battle Town

Current Situation in Battle Civil Parish.

B.T.C. has the responsibility to alert the public to its activities. This Committee is also required to assist with publicising events and news within the Civil Parish. One of the means we use to fulfill both these obligations is by using the notice boards around the Parish. There are currently 5 noticeboards in total: Netherfield, Telham, Market Square, Marley Stores and The Almonry.

As mentioned, the BTC notice boards contain BTC notices and also a few Battle events if space allows, at the discretion of the Town Clerk. The boards are frequently updated by the ground staff and does certainly take a little time including travel to ensure the notice boards are well presented and contain the relevant information.

We are here to discuss whether there is a need for a notice board in the south of Battle Town. By the south of the town we mean Abbey Green and nearby.

Current Situation on Abbey Green

There is some advertising of Battle Memorial Hall events on their own notice boards. The Police have a notice board inside the bus shelter. There is an unused piece of chipboard which is not in use on one of the properties near the bus-shelter. Following investigation, it was established that this is not available for future use. There is a substantial information board by the telephone box near the Abbey Gatehouse relating to 1066 Country Walk.

Locations for Notice Boards

The most useful place for a notice-boards is where people are on foot and likely to stop and read the content.

Points for discussion in relation to Notice Boards in the South side of Battle.

1. Is there a need for solely events noticeboard?
2. Is there a need for a BTC notice board?
3. If yes to question 2, locations could include: inside the bus shelter; end external panel of bus shelter; on Abbey Green; use one of Battle Memorial Hall notice boards (with agreement); alongside 1066 Information board. There may be other options.

Also to consider.

Can B.T.C. assist further with advertising of events?
